What Is Jesus Doing?

Since our message last week have you been asking the WIJD question? Have you been curious about what Jesus might be trying to teach you, show you, grow something in you? Are you looking at your circumstances any differently?

The purpose of the question is to get our minds thinking about the sovereign, all-powerful, all-knowing God of the universe. The question reminds us that we are his children, his chosen people, his royal priesthood; and if something is happening in our lives He is definitely aware of it. More than just aware, Jesus desires to use whatever that situation is to grow your faith and draw you closer to Him. But we will never get there if we aren't first looking to see how active Jesus is in our everyday lives.

Perhaps this question is producing new questions in you? What am I doing with Jesus? Am I reading his word, and spending time with him in prayer and meditation? Am I listening for his voice, or am I just assuming what I think he is saying?

Part of asking WIJD, comes with a desire to know what he is doing. I want to know how Jesus is working in my life so that I don't miss it. I want to learn the lesson the first time, so I don't have to take another lap in the wilderness. (That's a "Hebrews walking in the desert" reference...see Exodus) Because I deeply know that Jesus has redeemed me, and I deeply know that the Holy Spirit lives in me, then I deeply want to know what their desire is for my life. God has never led me astray, his counsel is wise and his words are true. If I will just open my ears and listen to know...What Is Jesus Doing?
