Notes

Quotes

"Jesus's words are still difficult for the church today. We are sure it is wise and spiritual to add to God's commandments, to make them contemporary, to have outward measures of inward obedience. Jesus rebukes us for this. He has not given us the right or authority – as parents, teachers, or pastors, or simply as individuals seeking to serve him – to make our own rules in addition to the laws he has given us once for all. Disobedience in this regard is one of the most serious weaknesses of the evangelical church today. We feel so threatened by the world that we feel we must add to God's Word, but Jesus forbids us!

"Yet, we often ignore his passionate denunciation and so we make our endless rules about what a Christian can see or read or listen to, what a believer is to wear or may eat or drink. However, Jesus tells us that any such rules will do nothing to make us genuinely holy or protect us from sin. Tattoos and ear-piercing, coloring one's hair, wearing it in spikes or ringlets, or any such external cultural practices will not hinder a person's spiritual growth or moral maturity, and avoiding these things will not help, simply because they all affect the outside of a person, rather than the heart. The same is true with rules about books, movies, music, and so on. Again, the rules we design for spiritual purity and maturity are legion, yet they have no spiritual value. In truth, they are spiritually damaging rather than spiritually helpful."

- Jerram Barrs, Delighting In the Law of the Lord

"What is it then that will keep us going in the face of this internal conflict? The answer is: the gospel. It is the assurance in the gospel that we have indeed died to the guilt of sin; that there is no condemnation for us who are in Christ Jesus; that the Lord will never count our sins against us; and that we are truly delivered from the reigning power of sin, that will motivate us and keep us going even in the midst of the tension between the Spirit and the sinful nature."

- Jerry Bridges (1929-2016), The Gospel for Real Life
