

Liam Wolfe

I used to tell my mom that God was not real. My heart told me He was real after reading lots of Bible stories. Now I know that He is great and He is good. I want to be baptized because it means I will be with God and follow Him.

Matthew Logan

Growing up a pastor's son, I can't remember the first time I accepted Christ. As I got older, my faith ebbed and flowed depending on my circumstances and interests. I worked at a Christian camp during college where I grew tremendously in my relationship with Christ and felt God's call to serve more. I'm excited to be baptized as a believer while I continue to worship and serve alongside others at Grantham.

Andi Monroy

I don't exactly remember when I came to know Jesus, but He has been changing my life ever since. Sometimes I have doubted that He is real, but then I remember all the things He has done for me. Every night my parents pray with me and I don't think I ever stopped to wonder whether God is really listening. God has blessed me with two loving parents and three siblings. God promises to always be with me and I'm excited to be baptized because I know he has washed away my sins so I can have a new life with God.

Emilee Gardner

I was 22 years old, good job, house, son, I thought I had life figured out, until I didn't. My boyfriend introduced me to drugs and it was all down hill from there. I experienced lows I never thought were possible, homelessness, incarceration, lost my kids, my family, and all respect I had for myself.

I didn't grow up in a Christian family, God was never on the forefront of my mind until I got arrested. I had no idea what to do, I was scared and lost. One night I was crying, desperate for anything to make my situation better, I prayed to God, SO HARD over and over and as the days passed, my worries, guilt, shame, all started to wash away. I was referred to One80 Ministries by my CRS and when I realized Julia Johnson (whom I've known since I was about 12) was in charge I nearly collapsed, God had dropped me into her lap for a reason. God has done a lot of special things in my life the past year, so today is all dedicated to HIM!

Olivia Monroy

I've grown up hearing about Jesus and how He died for me and I've come to understand His word and put my faith in Him. Putting my faith in Him means devoting my life to Him and trusting Him to lead me down the right paths. To live not for myself but for others and for Him. To choose Him over the world so that I can spend eternity with Him. I've chosen to be baptized to show that I will follow Jesus because Jesus is hope.

Liam Wolfe

I used to tell my mom that God was not real. My heart told me He was real after reading lots of Bible stories. Now I know that He is great and He is good. I want to be baptized because it means I will be with God and follow Him.

Matthew Logan

Growing up a pastor's son, I can't remember the first time I accepted Christ. As I got older, my faith ebbed and flowed depending on my circumstances and interests. I worked at a Christian camp during college where I grew tremendously in my relationship with Christ and felt God's call to serve more. I'm excited to be baptized as a believer while I continue to worship and serve alongside others at Grantham.

Andi Monroy

I don't exactly remember when I came to know Jesus, but He has been changing my life ever since. Sometimes I have doubted that He is real, but then I remember all the things He has done for me. Every night my parents pray with me and I don't think I ever stopped to wonder whether God is really listening. God has blessed me with two loving parents and three siblings. God promises to always be with me and I'm excited to be baptized because I know he has washed away my sins so I can have a new life with God.

Emilee Gardner

I was 22 years old, good job, house, son, I thought I had life figured out, until I didn't. My boyfriend introduced me to drugs and it was all down hill from there. I experienced lows I never thought were possible, homelessness, incarceration, lost my kids, my family, and all respect I had for myself.

I didn't grow up in a Christian family, God was never on the forefront of my mind until I got arrested. I had no idea what to do, I was scared and lost. One night I was crying, desperate for anything to make my situation better, I prayed to God, SO HARD over and over and as the days passed, my worries, guilt, shame, all started to wash away. I was referred to One80 Ministries by my CRS and when I realized Julia Johnson (whom I've known since I was about 12) was in charge I nearly collapsed, God had dropped me into her lap for a reason. God has done a lot of special things in my life the past year, so today is all dedicated to HIM!

Olivia Monroy

I've grown up hearing about Jesus and how He died for me and I've come to understand His word and put my faith in Him. Putting my faith in Him means devoting my life to Him and trusting Him to lead me down the right paths. To live not for myself but for others and for Him. To choose Him over the world so that I can spend eternity with Him. I've chosen to be baptized to show that I will follow Jesus because Jesus is hope.