PASTOR'S BLOG

As I write this, the Leafs are one game away from getting past the first round into the second round which will probably have them face the Bruins...which is now being called into question: EXCITING. After the collapse to Montreal in 2021, I am certainly not holding my breath, but it is an exciting time for the team and the city. I was asked this past weekend if I pray for the Leafs to win. My usual response to these questions is if we pray for one team to win that necessarily means we are praying for another team to lose. So, with all things, a prayer for God's will to be done suffices.

So, while I am not watching the Leafs in the post season until they make it past the first round, you might be wondering, what I am doing with that time. That's a good question to ask! I have been listening to some very interesting podcasts and slowly chipping away at a few books.

One of the podcasts that I am listening to comes to us from The Word on Fire Show. The last few weeks have not been the normal conversation between Brandon Vogt, the host, and Bishop Barron. As Bishop of his own diocese now, he was probably a wee bit busy with the work of shepherding, so instead they were posting keynote talks and conversations from the 2021 and 2022 Good News Conference. They are a bit longer, but still very fascinating. I just finished listening to episode 380, The Evangelical Power of Beauty where Bishop Barron speaks to us about the shift in approach that can lead to conversion and encounter with Jesus. We used to rely on the Truth, the Good and then the Beautiful. Rather than lead with Truth, leading with beauty can create space for spiritual conversations and a non-invasive way to bring people to an encounter with God. The next episode that I hope to listen to is episode 382, The Beauty of Hope with Fr John Riccardo. I figure the Easter season is one that is filled with hope and joy that this would be an uplifting talk to help keep paschal joy alive in my heart.

On the books side of things, Audible has been a good resource for me. However, not everything is on Audible, so hard copies it is. Given certain trends we see, getting hard copies of books, especially the classics in literature, would be important. The book that I am reading now is on Pope Benedict XVI, Defender of the Faith. With his passing, it is certainly nice to have this biography of him and his contribution to the Church during his life. The other book that I started last summer but stopped reading, for whatever reason is Cardinal Pell's Prison Journals. His witness to the faith is incredible, and with his passing, these journals are a testament of his faith and his interior life during a very difficult and heartbreaking time of his life.

So that you know that I don't just read spiritual books, I have on the go some Star Wars books on Audible. Given the news of the Star Wars universe expanding, the sci-fi fantasy genre was always my favourite growing up. Nice to have these books to keep me entertained and really push my imagination. Enjoy the smile of the week and may the 4th be with you!

Corpus Christi Procession

With the 44 children making their First Holy Communion this weekend, it is a joy to announce that this year we will be having an outdoor Corpus Christi procession! We acquired the permits from the city and are working out the logistics now. The procession will take us south to Saddington Park and loop around back to the parish. I am excited about this. Growing up, my home parish would always have a procession through the park on Corpus Christi and it was a great way to witness to our belief in the Real Presence to the streets.

SO Save the date: June 11th 2023 - The procession will begin after the 11am Mass and we hope to have a small time of fellowship in the hall following Benediction. And please, invite your friends and family to this event.
