PASTOR'S BLOG

Many thanks to Sam for her lovely reflection in last week's email. It was certainly a beautiful experience that I pray many other young people can attend in coming years from our parish. The best way for me to reflect on this weekend is in three parts - the bus ride going to Steubenville, the Conference itself, and the bus ride returning.

The Bus Ride to Steubenville

Let me clear, the bus rides were probably what I hesitated most about this Conference. Being on a bus with 50 young people, yeah, not my cup of tea. Having to stop a few times for meals, washroom breaks and of course taking our young people across the border were just a few reasons why I contemplated driving myself. However, the bulk of pastoral ministry is being present to the other. As St. Paul puts it, I become all things to all people so that at least some might be saved. So I said, "Suck it up buttercup" and would offer the discomfort of the bus ride for the young people and their experience of the conference. In retrospect, it was not as bad as I thought. We had a long wait at the border due to circumstances outside of our control and while I don't usually eat fast food, American McDonald's does taste different than the Canadian equivalent. Sam was the bus leader and did a phenomenal job of leading making sure everything went smoothly and we didn't lose any youngins' along the way. For myself, leading young people in prayer is certainly one of the joys of the priesthood.

The Steubenville Conference

I grew up knowing about the Steubenville youth conference. My parish would send a bus full of young people for it; but, because of my work responsibilities at the parish office, I never went. The next time I would be exposed to the Steubenville Conference would be after I was ordained and it was held in Toronto. However during those 6 years, I did not accompany the young people of the parish I was assigned to for the conference. Rather, I was assisting on the liturgical team making sure all the weekends liturgies went smoothly. So, this was a new experience for me, to accompany the young people of St. Mary's along with the 450 other young people from the Archdiocese of Toronto to the conference where I did not have to be concerned about logistics but could actually take in the conference. While the talks are directed towards young people, the content was so good. The opening talk about distractions, the talk about healthy masculinity and then the talk about the Holy Spirit were excellent. But, as Sam mentioned, when I was not listening to the conference talks, I was hearing confessions. 6 hours total confessions...each block of 2 hours, non-stop hearing confessions. And I was not the only priest hearing confessions, there were at least 10-12 or more other priests. Between all of us, 1200 confessions were heard. God's mercy was flowing through the Sacrament and having young people reconciled to God, no words to describe.

The Return

I honestly thought that after the weekend, I would be sleeping the whole way home. Nope. The return bus ride was exciting being able to discuss the content of the talks with some of the young people, the leaders and the youth ministers. It was a time of just free discussion with some really awesome questions. Along with playing games on the bus, we passed the time and I did not get a wink of sleep. Upon reflection, this is what Pope St. John Paul II did when he was a parish priest in Poland with young people. He would have small groups on hikes and camping. Just immersing himself into their joys and struggles. If I took the selfish route and drove myself, I would have missed out on this encounter with the young people. Goes to show you, all things work out to the good for those who love the Lord.

SSVP

SSVP - need, even in cottage country!

I was fortunate to spend a week in Muskoka. At the small parish (St. Peter's) in Gravenhurst, where I attended Mass last Sunday, they announced an unexpected bill of $4,000, which was going to put quite a sprain on their budget. I also learned that their SSVP is in great demand.

Let's be thankful for our blessings! (Sal)
