To help you become familiar with these new resources, we're introducing this special announcement. Every two weeks, we will highlight one of these books, along with a brief summary or review explaining why they may be helpful, inspiring, or timely for our church family. We encourage you to take advantage of these resources by visiting the church library and checking out a book that speaks to you. Whether you're looking for encouragement, guidance, or deeper understanding, there is something there for everyone.

majority of people that I know would admit to spending more time on our screens than we would like. The idea of being able to take an intentional break over the course of a few weeks sounds like an unrealistic dream. In his book Reconnected, Carlos Whittaker was able to take a break from his “real world” to spend seven weeks living with monks and with an Amish community. Growing up, I would look at those groups as quaint, as living in the stone age. I mean, who doesn’t like to talk and have electricity for goodness sake? But truthfully, those groups both get to experience a life that is more like what the majority of people throughout the course of time have lived.

I recommend this book not because I think it will make you give up technology for good, but because it offers some insight into what it means to intentionally disconnect from the modern world from time to time. I don’t want to give away too many surprises, but chapter after chapter disclosed information about how we can better develop community, how our brains are physically being changed by our current environment, and reminders of what that means for our spiritual lives.

Reconnected was an easy read that has stuck with me longer than many books. If you decide to give it a read, be sure to let me know what you think!

*God Moments: A meaningful church-wide project that invites our congregation to come together through the power of storytelling—and we need you to help make it happen! Each of us has experienced moments where God’s presence, guidance, or faithfulness was especially clear. These stories—whether quiet and personal or bold and life-changing—are worth sharing. Our goal is to gather enough submissions to create a special collection that reflects the depth and diversity of faith within our church family. Printed prompts are available, or you may submit your story digitally to the church office. Submissions should be 500–1,000 words. Let’s come together, share our stories, and celebrate all the ways God is at work among us.
